

About Journal

International Journal of Education and Language Studies IJEL is a peer-reviewed open-access journal on all aspects of educational, cultural, translation and language studies, published four times a year, by RIMAR ACADEMY. The journal concerns itself with publishing original research projects, articles and original scientific reviews in educational, cultural, translation and language studies research. IJEL publishes in English and Arabic. The board of referees and editors is a collective body of international and Turkish expert scholars who consider the liability of research projects to be published according to the parameters and regulations of IJEL.

Being open access and online available, it can offer excellent visibility and a fast processing time from submission to publication. IJEL aims to provide an interdisciplinary forum to showcase state-of-the-art research challenges in educational, cultural, translation and language studies research.

The scope of IJEL is extended to include Education, Glossary and Meaning, Grammar, Higher Education Research, Language, Language and Translation, Language and Islamic Sciences, Language and Discourse, Language and Technology, Language Pioneers, Language Teaching, Language with Human and Social Sciences, Linguistics and Critical Approaches, Literary studies, Literature, Phonetics and syntax, Rhetoric, and Teaching The language to non-native Speakers. The current academic landscape in sciences and humanities is witnessing a growing inclination towards an interdisciplinary approach. This integrated perspective acknowledges the interplay between various fields of study and emphasizes the interconnectedness of scientific and humanistic disciplines. Within this rich tapestry of knowledge, the integrity between sciences and humanities assumes paramount importance for the flourishing of our civilization and the advancement of our society. This confluence has led to transformative developments in diverse domains, including technological innovations, social progress, and cultural evolution. From the exploration of new frontiers in digital humanities to the examination of ethical implications in scientific research, the collaborative efforts between sciences and humanities have yielded profound insights and novel methodologies. In this regard, IJEL stands as a promising platform, fostering an interdisciplinary perspective in research projects that transcend disciplinary boundaries, nurturing the symbiotic relationship between sciences and humanities, and driving intellectual endeavors towards a more holistic understanding of the world we inhabit.

Each article submitted is the responsibility of one member of the editorial board or of the international scientific committee, who undertakes to have it evaluated by two peers who are experts in the field and who evaluate it anonymously.

The articles are primarily evaluated by our statisticians and internal screeners who check the articles for any methodological flaws, format, and compliance with the journal's instructions.

All authors are obliged to provide retractions or corrections of mistakes.

The authors must state that all data in the article are authentic.

Reviewers should provide constructive comments to improve the quality of the article.

IJEL supports the open-access publishing policy, therefore all articles and reviews are available in their entirety for free access as soon as they are published.

IJEL has a policy that all submitted articles are reviewed using a double-blind process. This ensures that each manuscript is reviewed properly and independently because neither the authors nor the reviewers are aware of one another's identities.

IJEL respects publication ethics.

IJEL rejects papers that contain plagiarism or self-plagiarism right away.

The publisher of our journal is RIMAR ACADEMY

Vision

IJEL views the most interesting topics of close relatedness to the new topics that point to updated results and motivations. Moreover, the Journal searches for most distinguished subject matters that provide zealous interest by scholars and high study students to write about and tackle. It also looks forward to establishing a bridge of scientific, human and modern communication among researchers from all over the world firstly, and among societies secondly, to strengthen human, scientific, research-based, dialogue, respect and other ways away from dissonance, exclusion, and nervousness of all kinds.

Mission

The Journal seeks to focus on how to study human language functions and dimensions all over the world, in order to handle its different issues, to facilitate human connection, communication, fiction and world representations on the basis of scientific research, common interests and educational principles that are aimed at promoting human well-being an 'living together'. It leads scholars to develop their points of view about the new curriculums for under and post graduate levels. Besides, it helps to focus more views on how educational and language studies find solutions in education, intercultural, translation and literary issues. It seeks to develop scientific research in this field, and to provide opportunities for researchers around the world, to contribute to solving educational, language and therefore scientific research problems, whatever the need to reach mutual understanding and harmony by accepting differences and community particularities among cosmopolitan, multi-ethnic societies away from intolerance and cultural, religious and ethnic fanaticism and prejudices.

Publication Ethics

International Journal of Education and Language Studies IJEL emphasizes the importance of strict adherence to ethical policies and standards to ensure to add of high-quality research articles to the field of scholarly publication. Unfortunately, cases of plagiarism, data falsification, inappropriate authorship, and the like, do arise. To verify the originality of content submitted to our journals, we use iThenticate to check submitted articles.

Publication Ethics and Malpractice Statement Guidelines Editorial Duties and Responsibilities:

Publication Decisions

The editorial board is the responsible body for approving the publication of the scientific research submitted to the journal. Papers submitted to the journal are evaluated to ensure that they meet all the criteria of the publication's terms and conditions regardless of race, gender, religious background, ethnicity, nationality, and political philosophy. What is taken into consideration is the scientific value, ethical criteria of work, scientific research integrity, language, citation and plagiarism. The editorial board panel is committed to improving the scientific sobriety of the journal through the publication of research according to their importance, clarity, originality and their accordance with the terms and conditions announced to the researchers.

Standards of Objectivity

The objective criteria in arbitration is a must and the personal judgment concerning authors is not allowed and disregarded. The arbitration must be reinforced by clear opinions and scientific arguments and it must be in accordance with the regulations and approved criteria of “publication terms” of the journal.

Multiple, Redundant, or Concurrent Publication

Researchers should not send their work to more than one journal; otherwise, it would be against the discipline of the publication. It is not permitted for researchers to submit a manuscript being evaluated to another journal that has its own policy of publication. In the case of submitting a manuscript, a researcher can retain the published material.

Fundamental Errors in Published Works

Researcher(s) should notify the editor or the publisher in case of misstatements in the material of their manuscripts in order to do the needed corrections. When authors discover a significant error or inaccuracy in the published research, they should inform and cooperate with the editor or the publisher of the journal in order to undo or correct their researches.

IJEL comply with I4OC standards for open citations, the I4OC standards ask that citations are structured, separable, and open.

Open Access

IJEL is an Open Access Journal. Open Access is the condition where the copyright holder of a scholarly work grants usage rights to others using an open license (Creative Commons or equivalent) allowing for immediate free access to the work and permitting any user to read, download, copy, distribute, print, search, or link to the full texts of articles, pass them as data to software, or use them for any other lawful purpose.

This is an open-access journal which means that all content is freely available without charge to the user or his/her institution. Users are allowed to read, download, copy, distribute, print, search, or link to the full texts of the articles, or use them for any other lawful purpose, without asking prior permission from the publisher or the author.

We charge our authors fees for acceptance of the publication. We will never charge readers to download articles. IJEL is free to all, anywhere in the world and perpetuity.

IJEL also operates under the Creative Commons Licence CC-BY. This allows for the reproduction of articles, free of charge, for any purpose, provided that the original authors are credited for their work. Note the CC-BY license cannot be revoked once granted, therefore published articles cannot be removed from IJHER once accepted for publication.
